1. We will use some different approaches to training in the next [REDACTED] (26 March - 2 April). The students will then go [REDACTED] for a final seminar/problem-solving session and depart there about 2030 hours on 2 April [REDACTED] the 25X1A6a students will be organized into five seminar groups to study and discuss the following operational problems:

These topics were selected for discussion by DC/FE [REDACTED] after the 25X1A8a Course Manager had canvassed FE [REDACTED] officers and students in this course for suggestions.

2. Mr. [REDACTED] is working with FI [REDACTED] to prepare a four-day orientation/briefing on selected CS topics for some NSA officers during the week of 5 April in 1A13.

3. We have completed the second week of an OFC for 31 students and so far it appears to be a lively and interesting group. At appropriate times we have separated the class into four discussion groups, led by a ST instructor, to change the instructional pace, to stimulate discussion and to reduce the number of lectures. It also reduces the amount of time students must spend in classroom 601 which is generally unsuitable for 31 students for this type of training. From experience gained in using this technique we plan to use it in future FOF's depending upon instructor availability.
